When it rains it pours! I already had to spend money we didn't have this week taking my son to the doctor, and now my service engine light is on and my car cuts off when you put it in park. Tommorrow we are off to the mechanic to get the verdict, but I can't even consider putting more than a couple of hundred dollars in it. I am not at all sure where that might come from!

Do you know any shade tree mechanics that are good? It's a good way to save money as long as they know what they're doing. Doctors though are another story. There's nothing more important than your health.
