I saw several stories about  this on different news agencies today. I can't believe they considered suing the United States for one second after the taxpayers bailed their sorry butts out!

I am glad that they changed their minds, but that is the most ridiculous thing I have ever heard. They weren't allowed to make enough profit off of the money we gave them to save the company?!?

A sad situation demonstrating the greed that got them into the situation the first time.  People have a way of remembering stuff like this...they had best not need help a second time.
