I had a brief moment of high-pitched ringing in my left ear today. I think that just happens on occasion to everyone, but I noticed it more because I've also had a few bouts of pain like I have an ear infection. Is ringing common during ear infections?

Ringing in the ears can be a sign of an ear infection in some people. I have been dealing with dizziness everytime I move my head for about a month now. Apparently, it is caused by little particles floating around in your ears and is called benign paroxysmal positional vertigo. I don't care what they call it because it stinks!

Thanks, LuvMartin. I sympathize with you regarding the dizziness. I tend towards dizziness myself, especially when on certain medications. I hope yours resolves itself soon.
