I just read an overview of some high end speakers that ranged in price from just over $2000 to almost $5000. I personally have not heard these speakers; they are out of my price range in any case. Have you heard these speakers and do you agree with the commentary? Would you ever spend this much on speakers?

I'm not familiar with any of these speaker brands. They are way out of my price range; that's the kind of money I set aside for a car! The most expensive speakers I've listened to recently were Bose; I wonder how they compare to the speakers in the article...

At this point in my life, I wouldn't spend that amount of money on speakers. If I were rich, it'd be a different story; I would consider them, depending on how they sounded.

I've never heard of any of those speaker brands, either. If I had money to spare, sure I might spend that much if they sounded that good, but they would have to blow me away!
