Subject: Over prescribing of meds Posted by Kara on Fri, 05 Apr 2013 03:21:06 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I went to the doctor's office last week to get some help for a cough that won't quite go away. Walked out with about five different medicines - I would rattle if you shook me after a meal this week! I am not sure I am doing the right thing putting all these chemical substances into my already weak system.

Subject: Re: Over prescribing of meds Posted by timron on Thu, 18 Apr 2013 23:26:14 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

My wife used to work as a pharmacy technician and she said the pharmacists were always complaining about how doctors in the community over-prescribe medications - especially antibiotics. She said over the years the public has come to expect to walk out the door with a prescription to fix all their problems and since the doctors are getting kickbacks from pharmaceutical companies anyway, they are happy to oblige.

Subject: Re: Over prescribing of meds Posted by Kingfish on Fri, 19 Apr 2013 15:42:36 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Five medications for one cough? That's going a bit overboard in my opinion. I would look into the option of not taking all five. I seriously doubt that you really need all of them.

Subject: Re: Over prescribing of meds Posted by Batch 5 on Fri, 19 Apr 2013 16:30:20 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Money be thy God of greed, Insurance companies, doctors conspire indeed. Schools do too, our children enslare, Medicating not educating, they're offensive, the worst. Friends, beware, don't walk this baneful path.

Subject: Re: Over prescribing of meds Posted by Azuri on Mon, 03 Jun 2013 18:25:31 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message Alrighty then.....Good to know Batch 5.

People just need to use their own judgement as to what is enough medication and what isn't. If it sounds like too much it probably is.

Page 2 of 2 ---- Generated from AudioRoundTable.com