I just came back from an international trip, and I must say, it was very easy to come through customs. I was in and out so quickly, I almost thought someone was going to run up behind me and tell me that I missed something! I was really pleased with the changes in security, but at the same time, I wonder if terrorists will also be happy about it.

Terrorists can never be happy with the tightness of security. Sometimes, we get to be afraid of the unknown because we might not know what we will be tagged especially on international trip. I will be please if security is getting better every new day.

Better security worldwide is what is desirable. For tourists to tour the world with ease without fear or worry about what they are about to face. I must say that it is the type of life that I want to experience and I hope security gets better everywhere.
