It is nice that things are finally starting to warm up. I hope this means that we will have a long summer! It has been unusually cold all over the world. Friends of mine visited Miami last month and said that it was actually cold there!

Yeah, it's been an unusually long winter here as well. I remember last year, the weather starting heating up in February, the dogs started shedding that month, and we started finding ticks on them too. This year, we're almost halfway through April and it's still too cold for shorts!

Check out "Winter" by the Rolling Stones. That should cheer you up. It's still a little chillier than normal where I live as well. That old man just isn't giving up is he?
