What do you guys and gals think of that internet "group" called Anonymous? Some people think they're the greatest thing since sliced bread while others see them as a thorn in the side of the World Wide Web.

I'm not familiar with this. What's the point of the group? Are they fighting for internet rights or something? Why do some people think they are a thorn in their side?

Anonymous is an internet "group" that likens itself to be a Robin Hood Type of thing. They go after organizations whom they feel don't represent the common man fairly. By "go after" I mean that they hack into their systems to reveal inside information.
