I just read a review of recording the organ at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco. While I've been to San Francisco several times, I've never been to Grace Cathedral and haven't had the opportunity to listen to the organ there. Now I wish I had; it's on my list for the next time I go.

I've been to San Francisco a few times as a teen but I have never even heard of Grace Cathedral. We were too busy checking out the usual tourist sites.

That's what happened to us too. We were so busy with Pier 39 and Chinatown and the cable cars that we didn't seek out alternate places to visit. I'd like to go back though, and next time I can go listen to the organ at the cathedral.

I absolutely love San Francisco and have been there many times. I've never heard of the Grace Cathedral! I can't believe it. I guess the city is just so chock full of great places to visit, that you can't get them all. But I'm putting it on my list now!
