My ears have been a bit itchy lately and last night when I laid down in bed, one ear kept throbbing a bit. Is that what an ear infection typically feels like? I'm not sure, and it's not bothering me today, so I'm pretty confused.

According to the old wives tales, someone's talking about you.

If it comes and goes like that it could be the start of an infection. You might want to look into it before it gets worse.
