I just heard the news that Linda Ronstadt has Parkinson's. This is really sad. She is in the same league as Jackson Browne, Crosby, Stills and Nash, The Eagles and other middle of the road artists. Her voice and style are going to be sorely missed.

That is too bad. Wasn't she the one who did "Blue Bayou"? She may not be able to make new music, but what she has done will live on forever.

I just read this and how sad for Linda Ronstadt. Imagine not being able to sing when it's something you've done for so long. I really enjoyed her music when I was younger. I liked her "Your No Good" song.

Not only voice, but there was some really nice acoustic guitar work in the early days...things like "Maybe I'm Right". Who ever is doing the playing has my vote.
