Some members of the media are calling for someone's head at MTV and also saying advertisers should pull ads after that disaster of a performance by Miley Cyrus. What do you think? Do you think it would help?

I am sure some folks liked it, but me.. nix. All I saw was a childish prank. IMHO she needs to grow up. I didn't see any of her peers applauding it.

I doubt advertisers will pull ads after Miley's performance. It certainly shocked and disgusted many people, but not to the point that people would boycott MTV.

I haven't heard anything about advertisers pulling out and I really didn't expect them to. Aren't the VMAs known for someone going for shock value each year?
