Universal Music Enterprises is releasing a second volume of the Beatles Live at BBC on both CD and vinyl. There will be 63 tracks! I'm not sure how they will fit all that, but it'll be interesting to hear the album all the same.

I sure hope it is better than some of the other releases. I really hate when they hype a release because it is on 180 or 200 gram vinyl only to find that the mix or mastering is trash.

Yes, I'm a little worried about that too, especially with the current aesthetic of "louder = better". Hopefully they did a decent job, but we'll see.
