Somehow I thought that our elected representatives were supposed to work for our good. It seems as if they have all gone off into the blue yonder with prior agendas. I for one intend to remind them of their behavior come election time. There is nothing more I can say that is fit to print in public.

I'm annoyed that the Tea Party representatives are holding the rest of us hostage. I understand that they don't like Obamacare, but the law passed and has held up to multiple repeal attempts and judicial scrutiny.

I emailed the Speaker of the House about my concerns... and guess what, there has been no response. I guess they are too busy blaming each other to worry about voters. As was so eloquently put on a comment I read... "I'll remember these shenanigans in November".

There have been a lot of laws in a lot of countries over the years (centuries) that weren't right. Many powerful nations have fallen as a result.

I read somewhere the our elected officials should vote according to what they feel is best and not according to what their constituents wanted. The article also said if we don't like what they do we should not vote for them again. Problem is by the time the next election comes around it's too late.

I think this whole mess is ridiculous, and real people are being hurt because those who were elected to represent us all won't do their job!
