I saw a band the other night at the bar. They were just high school kids but not half bad. They played classic rock with a heavy emphasis on guitar solos, which was pretty enjoyable.

It's cool to see kids following their dreams.

We went a few months ago to see my son's good friend play in a bar. It's great to see him involved in music, something he's been doing since he was a little child. They were pretty good and kept us entertained all night. I'm hoping for good things for him in the future.
