I just turned on the TV and I could've sworn I was hitting the button to turn the volume down. Instead I must have hit the up button because it got super loud really quickly, to the point that I almost panicked. I actually jumped up and turned it down at the receiver.

I guess I need some more sleep.

I hope you got yourself some coffee.

I remember one time I couldn't figure out why I couldn't hear anything and I kept upping the volume. Then I remembered to unmute and it just started blaring.
