Subject: Phones and depression
Posted by LuckyLucy on Mon, 20 Jan 2014 00:10:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It's time to "upgrade" my cell phone. I spent an hour yesterday at Best Buy and then at Verizon, and came home convinced that there are no good choices. This is how I ended up with my iPhone last time.

Is there really any difference in phones, or should I just close my eyes and pick one?

Subject: Re: Phones and depression
Posted by love2play on Mon, 20 Jan 2014 19:29:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well, I guess it just depends on what you are trying to use it for. I only use mine for texting and phone calls so I don't need a lot of features. One of the best things you can do is to read online reviews of the phones you are considering purchasing.

Subject: Re: Phones and depression
Posted by gofar99 on Tue, 21 Jan 2014 22:04:50 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi, I keep mine until they either will not do something I need done or they fail. Right now I have a S3. It does the job. Getting the latest and greatest new phone every year seems a bit excessive to me as the things they can do are limited by the apps and what the network you are on will allow. The newest ones are following the trend of PCs....bloated with features that very few will ever need.