Can anyone recommend a quality set of computer speakers for a desktop for less than $200? The last set we had was awesome, but after two moves and two kids over half of them are busted now.

I would look at either Best Buy or on Amazon. You might be able to find an affordable pair at general computer shops, as well.

What brand was that last set you had? I've never heard a set of computer speakers described as awesome. Are they now over $200? Is that why you don't want to go back to them, or are they not being made anymore?
