Subject: Nothing in Common
Posted by Samuel on Sat, 01 Feb 2014 15:59:06 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

We were listening to the radio today in the car. Regular, old fashioned radio, and it occurred to me that all the stuff that we listen to is old stuff from my teens. My kids listen to nothing that is popular today.

Are other households the same, has the drop in popularity of radio encouraged the single genre of music within a household?

Subject: Re: Nothing in Common
Posted by gofar99 on Sun, 02 Feb 2014 01:30:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi, I guess we are more typical. I listen to older stuff, and newer jazz. The kids are all into current stuff with the grand kids really into the newest of all.

Subject: Re: Nothing in Common
Posted by love2play on Wed, 05 Feb 2014 05:59:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Well, other than new country everything I like to listen too comes on the oldies station. I have to say I was quite shocked to realize that I was "old" at the ripe old age of 34!

Subject: Re: Nothing in Common
Posted by Samuel on Thu, 06 Feb 2014 10:12:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I suspect that I'm prematurely old too, but the stuff I hear today is just awful! I guess every generation has said that at some point though!