

---

Subject: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by Pioneer on Fri, 14 Feb 2014 20:58:33 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I never thought I would say this, but I think I am going to start buying audio books. I'm having a lot of issues with my eyes lately, and even new contacts and new eyeglasses aren't helping that much. I don't know anything about audio books, though. Where's the best place to get them? Do different companies use different narrators? What do you do if you want to listen to a certain book but you don't like the sound of the narrator's voice?

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by AudioClueless on Thu, 20 Feb 2014 09:22:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

There are different companies, but I only use Audible. I don't have eyesight problems, I just like them. They help me to fall asleep (I bookmark where I start each night so I can go back if I fall asleep fast) and I use them when I'm doing housework and cooking.

Narrators are hit and miss. You can listen to a sample of each before you buy to see if you like them. I've had a few I hated and returned, there was something stilted and jarring about their reading. Not all services let you return books, and Audible only allow a couple per year.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by Pioneer on Thu, 20 Feb 2014 09:37:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Thanks for the reply; I'll look into Audible. I really hope I can get these eyesight issues cleared up soon but in the meantime, it's made it a lot harder for me to read or do things on the computer!

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by AudioClueless on Fri, 21 Feb 2014 09:16:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

There are a large number of programs that might make your computer time a little easier. Look for screen readers, and screen magnifiers that are designed for visually impaired computer users. They will be listed as accessibility software.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by Samuel on Fri, 21 Feb 2014 09:54:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Audiobooks really do have their place. In particular they are great for children in the car, on long journeys. They act as boredom busters without the need for endless screen time, and there is a wonderful selection of books available.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books

Posted by Nisha on Sun, 27 Apr 2014 17:59:25 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I have never given audio books much thought, but the posts in this thread ignited an interest. I tend to get migraines when I strain my eyes too much; audio books seem to be a possible solution. I am not quite sure what themes are available, meaning story books, scientific books, magazines, latest news... Where does a rookie start in this new 'unfamiliar frontier' to find out what types of audio books are available? Is a set of headphones all that is needed to access an audio book?

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books

Posted by Round2 on Sun, 27 Apr 2014 22:39:34 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I have a friend who swears by audio books. He even listens to it when he goes jogging or for walks. He says it's very calming, especially when you get a good speaker.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books

Posted by Wayne Parham on Mon, 28 Apr 2014 17:21:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I love listening to the "Hitchhiker's Guide to The Galaxy" series while driving sometimes. Like to listen to Richard Bach's "Illusions" too. Not always, sometimes I like music, sometimes talk radio and sometimes audio books. But I drive enough I get a chance to listen to 'em all.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books

Posted by pk20 on Sat, 31 May 2014 15:55:20 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Round2 wrote on Sun, 27 April 2014 17:39 I have a friend who swears by audio books. He even listens to it when he goes jogging or for walks. He says it's very calming, especially when you get a good speaker.

A woman at work jogs at lunch and listen to her audio book while she runs. She says it keeps her focused on her running. I haven't gotten into it yet but I'm afraid I might fall asleep with someone reading in my ear.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by Harlow on Fri, 13 Jun 2014 14:46:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I can relate to you! I told myself I would never get into them. I kind of thought of them as lazy. I mean why not just read? When my father-in-law got very ill a few years back though, we would have to take him long distances to doctor visits in the car. My wife started bringing along some audio book- CDs, and we all loved them.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by Rachel on Sat, 14 Jun 2014 00:22:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

I still can't get into someone else reading me a story. I like to read my own books. I've heard there are some good audio books at the local library, you could try there and it would be free.

---

---

Subject: Re: Getting Into Audio Books
Posted by audiophile88 on Tue, 04 Nov 2014 20:06:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Samuel wrote on Fri, 21 February 2014 04:54Audiobooks really do have their place. In particular they are great for children in the car, on long journeys. They act as boredom busters without the need for endless screen time, and there is a wonderful selection of books available.

They're good for adults for this purpose, too, ha! I love listening to music on long rides but I get tired of it after a while, so here lately I've been listening to audio books through my smartphone. It makes a long work commute seem a lot shorter.

---