You may remember it was back in September 2005 when I fired up my SE amps. (My first serious valve project) Like every other keen audiophile I am always moving onward and upwards. A couple of weeks ago the amp's designer (Earle Weston) made me a very generous offer. They are have now just been reworked and are running 300BBOY am I looking forward to next weekend A holiday plus some new amps to play with. Please check my website for the full story Audioprojects

How's the new 300B SE working out? I just got my first SE amp, a Yamamoto A-08 running EML 45s, and it's just amazing what 4 watts can do. I think I've said this before: you have a really nice web site.
