Not sure if it's the demographics of people listening to radio these days but I'm finding it difficult to find a music station that actually stays on air for more than a couple of years. They seem to change their music genre often.

I don't really see that here in my area. I have been listening to the same two stations for years. The DJ on one is the same guy that was on when I was in high school. I wonder if it is just a location thing.
