Nothing makes me more mad than ticket scalpers. I tried for hours to get tickets to a concert that my daughter wanted to go to. I went online as soon as the tickets were to be sold to the public. I tried for 3 hours. Each time I got the message: high demand, try again. The concert is sold out. I see a ton of these tickets on other websites now for sale. Of course the prices are three times the original ticket value. This should be illegal.

I do believe it is illegal for these people to stand outside the venue with tickets. I think people that do this are crazy. It is the same with any popular item that is hard to get. I was trying to buy some toy my daughter wanted. I had to buy it from another internet site for double the price. These people think there is nothing wrong with what they are doing. I think there is.
