If I'm working at home on something that takes some concentration I will play classical music. It's the type of music you can have in the background without it interrupting a train of thought.

I absolutely cannot have music playing if I'm working. I have no idea why. When I was a teenager, that's the only way I could study. I'll try to listen to a song, get myself distracted and pause the song until I finish whatever task I'm doing.
