I have a small HDTV in the kitchen and want to put an antenna on it to see if I can pick up local stations. We don't have cable or satellite hooked up to it. Anyone know a good antenna that would work?

I've had good luck with amplified antennas. The ones that look like a plate aren't unattractive either.

We have a couple digital antennas. If you are concerned about aesthetics, get the one that looks like a flat square and attaches to a window. It seems to work as well as the more traditional-looking antenna.
