I love it when I find new stations to listen to. Usually it only happens when I'm riding in a friend's car and they happen to tune in.

I really like this too. I just recently found out that my town has it's own radio station and they play some really great music. It's like finding a hidden treasure!

I was going through New Mexico once and I found a doozy. It was a Native American station that played nothing but traditional Indian drums and chants. The DJ spoke Navajo the whole time.

It was.....interesting.

I would love to come across that station. Any idea where it's located on the dial? I'm curious if I could pick it up with my satellite radio.
