Hi, Just beefing....I live in a nearly desert area. We usually get little rain. About 5-7 inches per year is typical. We have had 5 inches in a single month now. This is in a month that usually only gets 1-1.5 inches. Inconvenient for sure but the blasted weeds are going nuts. Not only are they tall, but many have stickers on them. Roots go halfway through the earth. A real pain to remove. I could hardly get to my storage shed earlier this week. I'll gladly donate some of the rain to California. Although it seems that they got some yesterday. It washed out two sections of interstate 10. That must have been special as it is the main east west route between LA and Phoenix. 'enuf griping. On to listing to music now.

This is happening again this year. In fact, I saw on the news that this is going to be one of the best super blooms in Death Valley from all of the rain. So I guess there is an upside to all of the rain after all.
