2 Sonny Rollins: There will never be another you, and Sonny Rollins on Impulse
The Firesign Theatre, Nick Danger Third Eye
Elvis Costello and the Attractions, The Only Flame In Town
Never heard him before, does an 80's Buddy Holly thing and is a great arranger says
IMark-Almond, Mark-Almond, (sucks!)
THE BLUES PROJECT, RE-UNION IN CENTRAL PARK
In caps 'cause I really wanted this one even tho' Katz does sing an insipid ballad
Lionel Hampton, Golden Vibes
The Blues Brothers, Original Soundtrac
Emmy Lou Harris, Evangeline
And Finally, TA-DAAA, another one I've been seeking**
Laura Nyro, New York Tendaberry (ok, she's an acquired taste, I think she was brilliant; R.I.P.)
120 mile roundtrip, 10 bucks fer gas, $35 bucks fer 10 albums and we stopped at Popeye's fer lunch. What a day!

Holy smoke, you scored! Where do you find these? Do you go to record resale shops? Seems like I remember your saying that you went to audiophile events where albums were sold by the case.

No, no, not the bar in Star Wars. This one had the spiky punk kid embracing the greaser when the Indians won? That's the near west side of Cleveland. Still today. And there are head shops and used record stores still. Indeed, 'Play It Again Sam', one of my SATurday stops has been in business for 30 years selling only used equipment from Nikko integrateds thru Pioneer 2 man lift receivers and , in the holy of holies, the back room has all the 60's and 70's Fisher, Scott and Mac stuff in pristine condiiton drivng Altec, JBL, Fried and Dahlquist speakers. And 2 of those spiky hair twenty-somethings are in a totally outfitted bench area working on these relics. You should hear then talk drivers and crossovers!

What a gass! I'd like to visit those shops with you someday, Bill. Sounds like a lot of fun!
