Good enough to vote for?

I've always wondered if audiophiles like me have certain political leanings.

Personally, I'm going for Trump if he goes the distance. We need a business leader to be the CEO of the corporation called the U.S.A.

What say you?

I'm not sure. I haven't been following any of the political campaigns as closely as I should have, so I'm not sure where any of the candidates stand on the issues I care about.

I'm not big into following politics either, but I feel that if anyone can get this country back on track financially, it would be him. I'm just not sure he has what it takes to deal with other situations that may arise during a Presidency. I guess in a few months we will see what happens.

Lizah, I agree. I think Trump definitely has what it takes to get the country back on track financially. However, does he have the right personality to deal with dignitaries and heads of state?

He seems a bit bull-headed to me, although I know a lot of how a celebrity acts is just that -- an act. I like the idea of someone like him running, though -- someone who already has more money than he knows what to do with, meaning he isn't running for profit.

I think his ego drives everything he does. He doesn't like to lose and he likes the attention he's been getting. If that's his driving force behind righting this ship, so be it. As long as he succeeds at turning this country around.

I would vote for Trump or Cruz. If either one of them gets the nomination, I will send in my voter registration, and my vote.
I would love for a Trump/Carson or Trump/Cruz team in the White House.
