And what type of system is it on?

Coming out of an Onn

It's not the top of the line, but it's good for soft, background type music.

Lately I've been listening to Christmas playlists on Spotify. I reckon I've only got about four more days of Christmas music to look forward to and then people are going to start rising eyebrows about it, so I'm wearing it out now.

Oh, and listening on Logitech speakers. Nothing fancy by any means but they were affordable when I was strapped for cash.

I've been listening to a lot of different bands lately. Most have been my favorites since High School, so they are in the Alternative Rock genre. I listen to them on my iPod which is hooked into a radio that charges it while I listen.

Hi, Ray Charles Singers on Command Stereo LP (ca 1961). On a Sota Moonbeam with Jelco 370H arm and AT33PTG/II cartridge. Feeding a Simaudio Moon LP3 phono preamp into a Marantz 1060 ( a really nice piece of gear from 1969). This BTW is my office/shop system. The main one is a bit more substantial

Right now I'm listening to U2's Achtung Baby CD on my car stereo. The system came standard with the Malibu and I have no clue right now what it is. It sounds good though.

I've been listening to a lot of The Eagles and Glenn Frey lately. I stream through Spotify on one of our video game consoles and the sound comes out through the TV most of the time.
