Subject: New
Posted by X-Cerpt on Sun, 09 May 2004 04:36:13 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I've been over at a friend's house for a long time learning on Technic 1210s and a rather nice RANE mixer. I'm looking to buy my own soon on a college-kid budget. Where should I look? Used or not, doesn't matter. As long as they aren't busted.

Subject: Re: New
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sun, 09 May 2004 16:45:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

For new turntables, check with FSAudio and Triode & Co. Both are sponsors of AudioRoundTable.com and both carry high-quality turntables in various price ranges from a few hundred dollars to tens of thousands. So write to them 'cause they're both nice folks and can get you whatever you need, in whatever price range you're comfortable with.Also, I know you said "new" but if the budget is really tight, I suggest checking the pawn shops for a used Technics direct-drive turntable. Audiophiles these days prefer belt-drives but I've had good luck with the older Technics too.

Subject: Re: New
Posted by X-Cerpt on Sun, 09 May 2004 22:18:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thanks for the help. Budget flexuates, so I'll just wait to see when something is available from those people and I have money. Thank you.X-Cerpt

Subject: Re: New
Posted by DRCope on Wed, 12 May 2004 14:03:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi Wayne!Much as I appreciate the mention, I think he's looking for tables to use for DJ work. Belt drive tables don't go there . . . . . ;-)

Subject: Re: New
Posted by Wayne Parham on Wed, 12 May 2004 17:01:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Yeah, he may be using them for DJ work. But I wasn't sure so I made mentions about both belt-drive and direct-drive units.