Subject: Purchasing a keyboard
Posted by Lizah on Mon, 22 Feb 2016 17:18:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

My daughter wants to start taking piano lessons, but I don't own a piano or keyboard. I know that keyboards are less expensive so this is what I will be purchasing. Where can you buy keyboards nowadays?

Subject: Re: Purchasing a keyboard
Posted by Airforce 3 on Sat, 07 May 2016 17:38:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Best Buy has keyboards, but I don't know it they are the size you should have to take lessons on. I remember growing up, a neighbor girl took piano lessons downtown at the store that sold piano's. They had a room in the back where the owners wife gave lessons.

Maybe they still have that kind of set-up at the piano stores?

Subject: Re: Purchasing a keyboard
Posted by dreamer13 on Fri, 10 Jun 2016 06:50:19 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Keyboards are still pretty popular, so I think you can find it in music stores. Some book stores which have instrument sections also sell keyboards here. I recommend getting one which is made after a real piano so she will adapt easier when she switches to piano later.

Subject: Re: Purchasing a keyboard
Posted by Yurimi on Sun, 31 Jul 2016 14:01:34 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Our first piano was bought from a piano teacher at neighborhood nearby. The piano was old, but it was quite cheap and still functioned well. It was a good introduction for the kids to see if we were really interested in learning piano before buying more expensive instruments. I'm pretty sure you can also find keyboards if you look around.

Subject: Re: Purchasing a keyboard
Posted by sawyer25 on Wed, 31 Aug 2016 20:36:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I see keyboards in almost all music stores I walk into. You may want to buy one that is of good quality and that will stay with your daughter for a long time. It seems pretty easy to learn the keyboard though.