I had a pair of skull candy earphones that stopped working a couple weeks ago, and I want to get a new set. I usually get the kind with the rubber tip you stick in your ear, but I have seen people jogging with one that goes around the ear. I like to go on bicycle rides, and often my earbuds pop out, so I have been considering this around-ther-ear type.
Are they comfortable? They look like they would stay on well, but comfort is a big thing for me. Please drop a post below on which you think is more comfortable.

My boyfriend bought a pair about a year ago. They stay on well and he thinks they are comfortable. He likes to sail, so he moves around quite a bit, and they stay on most of the time.

I would love to sail! It must be fun to have a sailor as a partner.
I am not sure I would want to wear ear phones on a sailboat though! The waves swishing by, and seagulls crying must be a nice sound to listen to itself.
