Sometimes when I get home from work, I'm spent. I'm tired and don't feel like doing anything even when there are still things to do around the house. But if I take 30 minutes to listen to some soft jazz or Simon and Garfunkel, I get a second wind. I get enough energy back to finish out the day.

Are you like that too?

I get like that too, but S and G would only put me to sleep.

Those 80's power ballads are what does it for me when I need coffee for the ears.

Oh I agree, I wouldn't be able to listen to anything that is too soft or I'll be asleep before I know it. I have to listen to something that will make me want to dance around to get my second wind.
