Have you ever enjoyed a concert so much that you decided to buy its documentary DVD? I really love this one rock band and I want to buy their concert DVD. It's quite expensive so I'm still thinking about it. What do they usually contain? Is it worth the cost?

I've only done this once and it was way back when I was in high school. I had this one favorite band and they put out one of their concerts on VHS. I watched that thing all the time. Of course, I don't know if I would spend the money now on something like this.

As far as I know, concert DVDs have high-quality video records with various extra contents. You may get to see interviews with the artists, behind-the-scene cuts, and goodies related to the artist. If you like to collect such items as a fan, I'd say it's worth the cost. If not, you can try to search for the videos on YouTube.

Yeah, actually I'm also interested to buy the DVD because I'm looking forward to those extra contents. I'd love to see the interviews, behind the stage events, preparations, and so on because usually they are funny and show more insight about the artists. Not to mention the high quality of the videos, of course.
