Subject: Walkman
Posted by dreamer13 on Tue, 26 Apr 2016 08:46:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I was cleaning my room when I found my old Walkman. It's been forever since I last used it so granted it's already broken (not that I have any tapes left to confirm it). I'm feeling so nostalgic, remembering the days when I brought Walkman everywhere so I could enjoy music every time. Do you still have a working Walkman? Did you keep a broken one, just to remember the old times?

P.S. I'm going to keep this Walkman forever.

Subject: Re: Walkman
Posted by Nouri on Tue, 26 Apr 2016 18:11:47 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Sometimes I want to buy one and a few cassettes just to relive the old days. Get some 70's era jogging shoes, shorts and sweatbands, go jogging with it all and really turn some heads.

Subject: Re: Walkman
Posted by gofar99 on Wed, 27 Apr 2016 02:46:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi, I still have a working one. I also have probably a 100 tapes. I use them in a vintage Nakamichi cassette deck. Most are pretty good. Not quite up to the level of vinyl or CDs but still worth listening. For portable listening now I use a Sony digital player. It is about 3 inches by 1.5 by 0.3 and will hold about 800 MP3s (less of other formats) and will actually do video as well. On a single recharge it will run for about 30 hours of music. It is a long way from the cassette player it replaced.

Subject: Re: Walkman
Posted by Lizah on Wed, 04 May 2016 16:26:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I don't have a Walkman anymore, but I do still have some mixed tapes that my friends made me. I found them a few weeks ago when I was cleaning the attic and I listened to some of them on my cassette player that I got when I was training for my medical transcription job.

Subject: Re: Walkman
Posted by BeccaH on Thu, 05 May 2016 10:33:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I never had a Walkman, but I did have a Sony Minidisc (MiniDisc? Mini Disc?) player. I remember spending absolutely AGES recording tracks onto those big square plastic mini discs, then having to carry them all round in a huge carry case. How times change!