Which movie soundtrack do you find the most emotionally moving? For me it would be Schindler's List - there's just something about that violin that brings tears to my eyes. I think that even if I hadn't seen the film or know what it's about, the music would still get to me every time.

Isn't it funny how music can play on our emotions like that. I don't think I could pinpoint just one movie where I enjoyed all of the songs on it, so I think they should come up with a compilation of the best emotional movie songs out there.
