Have you ever been to a concert where the artist is trying so much to sing but is being let down by the sound system? Interesting, I attended a concert where sound quality and volume was good but I could hardly here the artist.

It was easy to notice that she was growing frustrated. Soon, boos could be heard from the crowd when it really wasn't her fault.

Thankfully, I have never experienced an audio letdown like this during a show. What ended up happening? Did they stop the show and fix the audio or did she keep performing?
