
Subject: Bluetooth watches

Posted by drake on Sat, 18 Jun 2016 10:43:16 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I was checking online to check prices and could see these watches costing as low as $100. Does brand matters when purchasing this kind of watch? I am thinking of going for one and cost is the least of my worries. As much as I may be put off with an expensive item, I want to be able to get value for money.

Subject: Re: Bluetooth watches

Posted by Concorde on Mon, 20 Jun 2016 15:27:52 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Call me out of the loop, but what are they good for? What is their function? Is this something a person needs?

With anything, brand matters only if you want it to. You are not guaranteed quality based on the brand name alone.

Subject: Re: Bluetooth watches

Posted by drake on Mon, 20 Jun 2016 19:15:15 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Concorde wrote on Mon, 20 June 2016 10:27Call me out of the loop, but what are they good for? What is their function? Is this something a person needs?

With anything, brand matters only if you want it to. You are not guaranteed quality based on the brand name alone.

I wouldn't particularly say this is something that is a 'must-have' since preference varies from person-to-person. Bluetooth or smart watches are wearable computing devices that almost look like a wristwatch. They act as a Bluetooth adapter that extend the capabilities of the wearer's smartphone to the watch.

Other models feature full mobile capability and most people use them to them to make or answer calls. My assumption is that quality can be attached to a brand name, based on user reviews.
