Subject: Long Periods Of No Music Posted by Azuri on Fri, 29 Jul 2016 08:46:29 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Have you ever gotten burned out from listening to music? Was there ever a period of a few months or so when you just kept it off?

Subject: Re: Long Periods Of No Music Posted by johnnycamp5 on Fri, 29 Jul 2016 11:21:06 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I do not stop listening to music at low volume levels for very long. I may skip a month or even two from time to time, over the years.

I do grow tired of rocking out with loud music, if I do it too often, with the obviuos result being listening fatigue.

Subject: Re: Long Periods Of No Music Posted by Yurimi on Fri, 29 Jul 2016 13:33:00 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I can't just cut music from my life like that. I may get bored listening to the same songs after a while, but when that happens, I usually search for new songs or artists to check out instead of avoiding music. A day without music feels too bland for me.

Subject: Re: Long Periods Of No Music Posted by Kingfish on Fri, 29 Jul 2016 16:22:53 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Azuri wrote on Fri, 29 July 2016 03:46 Was there ever a period of a few months or so when you just kept it off?

Does a fish leave the water for a few months Azuri? What you're suggesting is simply unnatural behavior for an audiophile.

There does come a time when even James Taylor seems like too much "movement in the air" and I have to switch over to talk radio for awhile. It's calming, unless it's political.

Subject: Re: Long Periods Of No Music Posted by sawyer25 on Mon, 01 Aug 2016 06:52:34 GMT View Forum Message <> Reply to Message I cannot do without music, ever. The longest I have ever been off music was a week and it was because I had other engagements in a land far away. What I cannot do is listen to music while performing other tasks.

Page 2 of 2 ---- Generated from AudioRoundTable.com