Subject: Foreign Characters/Letters
Posted by Concorde on Fri, 05 Aug 2016 22:16:25 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Can you buy keyboard stickers that have foreign characters on them? Like Russian for example? This would be an easier way to type a foreign language than re-setting the language on your computer, wouldn't it?

Subject: Re: Foreign Characters/Letters
Posted by mamoss on Sat, 06 Aug 2016 04:38:38 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I have never known there is a keyboard with foreign characters but since I know no foreign language at the moment, I will just stick to my usual keyboard. Do these cost more? I'd love to have a look at one.

Subject: Re: Foreign Characters/Letters
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sat, 06 Aug 2016 16:08:29 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You can buy keyboards with alternate layouts for other countries and languages.

Subject: Re: Foreign Characters/Letters
Posted by The Noise on Sat, 06 Aug 2016 17:24:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

A keyboard for this purpose you would probably have to order. I have never seen one in a major retailer and I can't see small local stores having them in stock. There isn't the demand.

Subject: Re: Foreign Characters/Letters
Posted by Wayne Parham on Sat, 06 Aug 2016 23:22:00 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That's right. The demand for a foreign keyboard is high in the country where it's used and low in most other countries. So you would need to order a foreign keyboard because most places won't stock it locally.