I'm just wondering if anyone has ordered from save-on-audio.com before? I found some speakers that I'm interested in purchasing at a really good price, but I don't think there is any warranty with this purchase. Do you think it's a good idea?

I have not bought from any online site before since I prefer to walk to a shop where I can be able to have a look first. Issues to do with warranty are vital so it is important to get everything right from the beginning.

Have you checked to see if you can find these speakers elsewhere?

I'd personally never purchase anything without a warranty. These days, things are not made to last. I'd suggest searching for those or similar speakers through stores that provide the warranty even if the price might be higher (it'd be worth it, in my book).
