
Subject: Listening to the radio in the 60s and 70s
Posted by lilbill on Mon, 29 Aug 2016 17:04:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

My father grew up in the late 50s and early 60s and he can never stop describing how good the times were back then. There is normally a dedicated radio channel that purely plays music produced around this time. How I wish I lived during this era, the golden days of radio.

Subject: Re: Listening to the radio in the 60s and 70s
Posted by Lizah on Tue, 30 Aug 2016 11:55:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I've thought that before too. There is a lot of music that I like from that era and I find myself listening to this type of music a lot more the older I get. Do you listen to it on streaming channels?

Subject: Re: Listening to the radio in the 60s and 70s
Posted by Herz on Wed, 14 Sep 2016 15:42:28 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I sometimes find myself tuning to the oldies channels, as well. A lot of the music is relaxing to listen to. The Everly Brothers and Elvis (of course) are some of my favourites.

Subject: Re: Listening to the radio in the 60s and 70s
Posted by moss24 on Wed, 21 Sep 2016 15:31:11 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The oldies are great and that is the category of music that never dies. Lately, I have been comparing the current trends of music with what things were like back then and it is a pity that there are certain musicians that we'll dare not listen to, 20 or so years on.
