The last movie I watched was Suicide Squad, and that was almost three weeks ago. Sometime back, I could do two movies each week but I guess we tend to get busier as time goes by.

We definitely get busier as time goes by. I hardly get time to watch a movie nowadays and time seems to be flying past really fast.

People should really make use of their younger years before various commitments and responsibilities set in.

The last movie I watched was also Suicide Squad. I used to visit the cinema regularly, at least once every two weeks to check the new movies. Work is crazy lately, so I go for movie marathon if I have some free time and there are titles worth watching.

It seems everyone was caught in the hype that Suicide Squad generated and I was no exception. I was to watch Legend of Tarzan but got swarmed with work. It helps to go to the cinema once in a while and I like the feeling that exists when a 3D movie is showing.
