I have had enough earphones that keep getting spoilt. I believe that a set of Bluetooth stereo earphones will finally be my way around this.

Is there a specific brand that anyone can recommend? I have been told they can cost as little as $15.

Hi, I don't have any specific brands to recommend, but I doubt that any costing $15 will be worth the trouble to bring home. I would suspect based on the quality of wired phones I have used (both buds and over the ear ones) that decent blue tooth ones would have to run in the $100 and up range. Really great sound would be more.

I agree with gofar; you will get good ones for the range of $100 upwards. For starters, you will get good sound quality for that amount.

I don't really concentrate on the brand at most times.
