We are already at the era where everything should be easy to bring anywhere, even inside the house. Do you own any portable speakers? Which brand do you have? I'd love to get one, but not sure which one to buy yet.

I own some portable Bluetooth speakers but I've never cared to look at the brand. You should check online reviews for whatever speakers you settle on then make a choice based on what people are saying about them.

Ultimately, you should get value for many.

Portable speakers are the way to go. I own a couple of Bose speakers and they are quite powerful. Have you heard of this brand before?

I do own a pair of portable speakers but prefer headphones when out and about for convenience. The brand is Bose. More specifically the Soundlink Color II speakers in Black. I like them, my favorite features are water resistance, holds a long charge, and the great Bose sound quality of course. I don't use them too often- normally only when on vacation or business travel.

I have a set, which are Sony. The quality is average, although the bass is slightly lacking, but I don't use them very often because in most of the cases where I would use them headphones are more convenient.

I have one of those little Bluetooth speakers. It does ok when the environment is generally quiet, but if there is background noise, it is a bit difficult to hear it. That's something you'll want to check for when you're researching portable speakers, I think.

Hello, I have a couple of different portable speakers. I know one brand that I have that's pretty good is my HK Onyx Studio speaker. It's big considering that it's portable, but it has high sound quality.

It seems to be easy to come across portable speakers these days, considering a lot of people like to buy duds because they are cheap. I personally like a couple of brands.
