Subject: Radio broadcasting
Posted by moss24 on Thu, 06 Oct 2016 19:42:26 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You'll probably agree with me that traditional radios and broadcasting have become a thing of the past. Do you think the evolution to satellite and internet radios has brought with it numerous gains?

Subject: Re: Radio broadcasting
Posted by Wayne Parham on Thu, 06 Oct 2016 20:22:10 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I still love traditional radio. Living in the Ozarks makes my home shadowed by the hills, so internet radio is a nice convenience. But I still love my old tube radios!

Subject: Re: Radio broadcasting
Posted by lilbill on Thu, 06 Oct 2016 20:41:39 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I also love traditional radio and nothing can ever be compared to it. I listen to traditional radio when I have the opportunity. It seems that the traditional radio is slowly giving way to modern trends.

Subject: Re: Radio broadcasting
Posted by gofar99 on Sat, 08 Oct 2016 01:51:52 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hi, Unfortunately the stuff getting air time here is pretty dismal. I stick to XM satellite in the car, my own collection of vinyl and cd at home. I don't even have a tuner in either of my two main systems. Sad, I always used to listen to FM.

Subject: Re: Radio broadcasting
Posted by cwemoy on Fri, 14 Oct 2016 19:21:41 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I agree that what's been given a lot of air play is music that most people cannot even identify with. Gofar, how I wish i had a rich music collection like yourself.