I keep seeing the commercial for Google Home Personal Assistant on TV and it looks like something that every home should have. What I'm wondering, though, is which one is better, Google Home or Amazon Echo? Does anyone have either one of these devices?

I would go with Google. That company seems to have technology perfected to whatever they want to do with it.

The Amazon product looks like a knock-off of the Google original.

I agree. Google seems to have perfected everything with all these other companies trying to imitate them or play catch up. In fact, I have never heard of the Amazon product before.
