Subject: The Old Stuff
Posted by Airforce 3 on Mon, 12 Dec 2016 20:36:50 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I get in these moods sometimes when all I want to hear is older records on a turntable. I don't care about the lack of quality when compared to the the newest technology, there are times when this way sounds the best to me.

Anyone else have bouts of nostalgia like this?

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by Kingfish on Wed, 14 Dec 2016 08:23:22 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

All the time. I can't stomach most of the new stuff and I don't have the time to wade through that swamp to find the good music.

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by drake on Wed, 14 Dec 2016 09:01:14 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Most of the new stuff isn't as appealing and even lacks enough quality at times. I get serious bouts of nostalgia, every time I listen to an old tune. I miss the good old days.

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by Becky on Sat, 04 Oct 2025 18:25:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

The new model of singing or doing new things are not interesting to me but I always feel happy whenever I see the old stuffs or listen to old songs. The old days was smooth and lovely for everyone back then.

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by George on Mon, 06 Oct 2025 13:17:36 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Becky wrote on Sat, 04 October 2025 13:25The new model of singing or doing new things are not interesting to me but I always feel happy whenever I see the old stuffs or listen to old songs. The old days were smooth and lovely for everyone back then.
Those old songs remind me of the good old times. Sweet memories that I've missed and listening to songs by Michael Jackson makes me say that he was the king of Pop!

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by Bercle on Thu, 09 Apr 2026 21:49:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I am more accustomed to new songs and new stuff. I believe it is all about choice, and playing most of those old records doesn't just give me the vibes that I desire. We've got better talented artists nowadays who do cool songs that are worth listening to.

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by Hank on Mon, 10 Aug 2026 06:14:18 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I do both. I feel limited when I listen to old songs while ignoring the amazing talents that we've got now. So, when I hear some good jams by new artists, I tend to check up more of what they've done in the past year or two

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by Bercle on Sat, 15 Aug 2026 04:39:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I am not going to judge anyone who is more comfortable with doing both, but it is never my thing at all. I am more relaxed and happier with playing new songs from artists that we've got around than listening to old stuff.

Subject: Re: The Old Stuff
Posted by Rusty on Sat, 15 Aug 2026 19:30:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I try to make forays into the contemporary music scene. I don't reel in too many, but occasionally I find an artist or group that does me right. A while back I came across a gal that plays the hell out of her guitar. She can shred it, pick it and throw some mean chords down. And she has a rather unique I think vocal tone. Jackie Venson from the Austin Tx. area. A music bonanza center famous for many artists and groups.
Jackie doing her thing. Even breaking a string doesn't slow her down.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=SXRU24v_gCM&t=5s

But my oldies sustain me with all genres of music. One being Americana music, which covers a wide spectrum. Back in my formative days of staying out late catching the music scene locally. I caught this act of Robert Gordon, that in the 70's was doing a Rockabilly revivalist thing. But he'd throw in all the great Americana foundation of rock, blues and country.
Here with Danny Gatton, a guitarist of legend that unfortunately his life and career ended way too soon. Wished I could've seen him or another guitar legend Robert that accompanied his act, Link Wray.

From a CD that I snatched soon as I saw it. The Humbler from a live show.
Doing an old Webb Pierce country tune.
There Stands the Glass.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uMQiGDSj050&t=3s