This bad boy is battery operated and only costs about $100.00. Would you buy one? If so, what would you use it for? Music during a power outage? Halloween music for when the kiddies come around for candy?

Yikes! No!

I like old Crosley equipment, and the new reproductions are fun too. Except for the turntables. Those cheap turntables with ceramic cartridges are terrible. They're the same as the kiddie turntables from the 1970s. They sound bad and they shred the grooves in your record albums.

It would make a good cat toy. They like things that make noise and move.
